Interesting Facts !!!! The season of Halloween points us to all things supernatural. Several decades ago the parish abounded with what was known as rambling houses. These were houses where locals gathered to talk, tell stories and entertain each other. The visitors would often disperse late into the night to walk home often travelling through remote fields and pathways. A pathway from one such house outside Clonegal went through a haunted wooded area. One of the visitors left early with the intention of frightening another man who travelled this path home. He sat covered in a white sheet waiting for his victim to arrive. The man on his way home duly came through the pathway in the wood. He looked straight at the sheeted figure and loudly remarked I see there are two of ye here tonight, frightening the would-be prankster.
